Too Cool Not To Share

Did you know that there is a town in the United States that is only accessible by land by driving through Canada? Point Roberts, Washington is on the southernmost tip of the Tsawwassen peninsula, south of Vancouver, Canada. Interstate I-5 can take you from Seattle into Canada and back into Washington. You will need a passport to access the area via car. However, you can still reach Point Roberts by air or sea without the need to cross the border.

How did this happen?

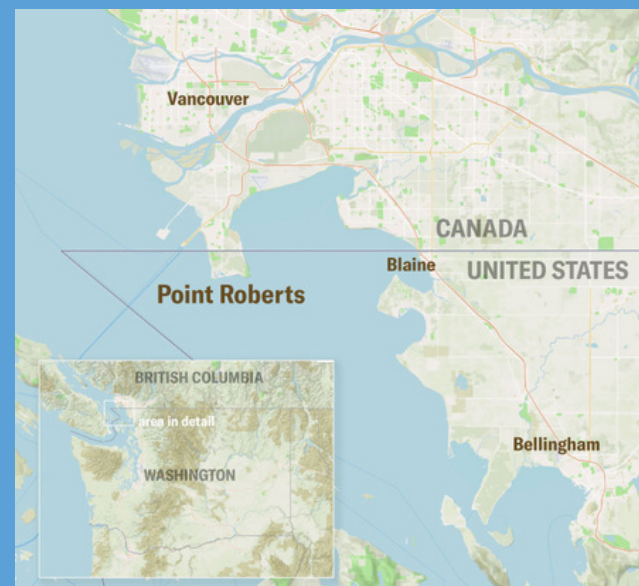

When the original borders were being created, the dividing line between the United States and Canada was the 49th parallel. Everything above belonged to Canada and everything below belonged to the U.S. (except near the Great Lakes, where the water is the boundary and Alaska. Point Roberts was created when the United States and United Kingdom settled the Pacific Northwest American-Canadian border dispute in the mid-19th century with the Oregon Treaty.

Life In Point Roberts

There is only one school in the peninsula. Its only for grades K-3. Students in 4th grade and above attend school in Blaine, Washington. Blaine is a 40 minute bus ride through British Columbia, Canada. Point Roberts has a single grocery store, one clinic and no hospitals, vets, pharmacies or dentists. Although Vancouver is closer, residents cross two international borders for basic services.

How Long After Birth Can I Make An HIE Birth Injury Claim?

by: Marcus B. Boston, Esq.

One question that we receive a lot on, and offline is how long after birth can I make an HIE birth injury claim? The core of this question is a statute of limitations issue. In this educational article and supporting video I will discuss some of the critical issues presented when trying to figure out how long after birth can I make an HIE birth injury claim.

As a side, I will not give specific details about numbers in this video because the numbers can vary from state to state. For those types of questions, I suggest that you speak with your specific attorney for number issues. Maryland, where I am located might have different numbers from your state.

What Type Of Claims Are We Talking?

What some parents and families are not aware of is the fact that in some cases, there might be different claims that can be brought when a baby has suffered a traumatic brain injury at birth like HIE. Some states have specific claims that parents can bring and the baby can have specific claims that can be brought.

The issue of the statute of limitations can depend in some cases on the type of claim(s) that will be brought in court. In general, when the parents bring a claim, they will have less time to bring their claims than the baby. This is because essentially the baby's youth will give them more time to file. Remember that this is in general and only your attorney will be able to give you specifics regarding this issue.

How Long After Birth Can I Make An HIE Birth Injury Claim?

The best advice that I can give you if you are dealing with these challenges is to speak with a birth injury attorney as soon as possible when you suspect that the doctors, nurses, and/or hospital is responsible for your baby's birth injury. Waiting and allowing the time period to close can be devastating to families, especially when the evidence suggests that the medical professionals and hospital are responsible for the HIE injury.

Remember, this article and all articles and videos on our websites and social media are not legal advice. Each and every case and legal matter is different and you should speak with an attorney if you have any questions about your specific issue.

Tips If You Suspect You Have Been A Victim Of Medical Negligence

1. Request your full medical record.
2. Don't be afraid to seek a second opinion.
3. Contact a lawyer who concentrates in the area of medical malpractice (not just personal injury)!

Kudos

I just wanted to thank you. Your videos made me file a lawsuit for [REDACTED] and we ended up settling and they ended up admitting they were at fault so thank you for everything you do!

When you truly enjoy helping people, you only care that they get the help they seek regardless of where it comes from.
